Public Aliiance Asks President Roosevelt to End Coal Strike.

They Hoped the Matter Would Be Settled on J. P. Morgan's Return, But He Declines to Make Concessions or Arbitrate.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 30.-The public alliance of this city which has been endeavoring to bring about a settlement of the coal strike in the interests of the business men of the anthracite region has sent the following appeal to President Roosevelt:

"To the President of the United States: Since the inception of the the anthracite coal region, we, the non-combatants who stand upon neutral ground, have suffered the inevitabie fate of such unfortunates. The tide of battle ebbs and flows over and above us. We have endured patiently. We have petitioned humbly. We had hoped for much upon J. P. Morgan's return. But new, after a struggle of four months' duration, a period of suffering and progressive business paralysis when it seemed to us that the time was propitious for a settlement of some kind, if not a matter of concession to public opinion, yet as a plain business proposition, Mr. Morgan has met with his henchmen and the edict has gone forth: 'There wili be no settiement, no arbitration, no conciliation, no mediation, no concessions. The fight must go on'

"Hostilities" Between the Army and Navy Opened.

Never in History of This Country Has Such Grim Aspect Been Given to Defense Which Guards the New England Coast.

Newport, R. I., Sept. 1.-Under cover of fog and the blackness of night. the North Atlantic fleet, commanded by Rr. Adm. Higginson, slipped its cabie in Menemsha Bight, Vineyard sound, shortly before 10 o'clock Sunday night and put to sea, making the first move anoat in the war game between army and navy in the imaginary along the southern New England coast. On land from Fort Rodman, at Bedford, to Fort Wright, at Fisher's Island, every fortification is manned by artillerymen and every head land is patrolled by signal men just as carefully as if a real hostile fleet were about to descend upon this part of the seaboard.

The actual war period began at the expiration of 48 hours of preparation, and while they appeared to take things easily during that interval, the land forces under supreme command of Maj. Gen. MacArthur were drilled at the guns and at a signal station with all the vigor that forecasts real bridge.

Never in the history of this country has such a grim aspect been given to the defenses which guard New Bedford, the cities on Narragansett bay, the Connecticut shore, and, more important even, the city of New York, from attack under cover of Martha's Vineyard and adjacent islands and through the great waterway-Long Island sound.

Sunday night when taps sounded at ali the forts nearly 5,000 artillerymen went to step beside their guns ready to spring up for action when the alarm sounded. The walls of the fortifications were paced by guards and aiong the beaches sharp eyed signalmen swept the sea with their glasses feverishiy anxious lest the light of a hostile war vessel be taken for that of a friendly merchant craft.

On sea the fleet had been swallowed up in darkness and it will be heard from next when it makes a descent on the coast within the zone of hostilities. There are nearly 5,000 men afloat and it may be that Adm. Higginson will endeavor to jand his marines at some exposed point of the shore defenses and attempt to capture it before making his attack in an effort to force an entrance to Buzzard's or Narragansett bay or Long Island op, but anticipating an early landing of their visit to Harrisburg in May. party from the fleet at Gay Head, the signai station there was moved to higher grounds to avoid being rushed of communication may be Adm. Higginson's first thought, in order to use shaking, he plunged into the forest of his marines. The first point of attack is looked for at Fort Rodman, manned by volunteer artillerymen, but there may occur only a reconnaisance by the gunboats while the great battieships swing into action to the westward and by skilful maneuvering, theoretically hammer the fortifications to a mass of ruins with their ponderous turret rifles.

> Like chessmasters, it is Adm. Higginson's turn now.

The Largest Balloon Ever Constructed Starts From Denver.

Denver, Col., Sept. 1.—"Big Glory," one of the largest balloons ever constructed, was successfully started from this city Sunday on a trip, the purpose of which is to break the world's long distance record as well as all previous records for fast balloon sailing. It also intends ultimately to reach New York, if possible. The balloon contains 140,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas and was built especially for this trip. The expedition was planned and equipped by the Denver Post. The occupants of the balloon are Capt. T. S. Baldwin and Percy Hudson, aeronauts, and C. S. New York, and is to secure an issue of Sherman, a member of the art staff of the Post. CARLISLE GRAHAM'S FEAT.

He Swam From Whirlpool Through the Lower Rapids.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Sept. 1.—Cariisle D. Graham swam from the whirlpool below Niagara Falls through the lower rapids to Lewiston Sunday. Graham made a better swim than he did September 9, 1901, when Maude Wiliard attempted to navigate the upper rapids in Graham's barrel and was suffocated. Graham Sunday wore a iife preserver about his waist and a neck float. The swift running current whirled the swimmer to the center of the stream and for nearly half an hour Graham battled with the waves. As far as the Devil's Hole it appeared comparatively easy for Graham and then he plunged into rough water that many times hid him from sight. Only once, however, was he in langer. A current suddenly tossed him toward the shore dangerously near a big boulder that showed threateningly above the surface. By desperate swimming he just avoided the rock and was carried on down stream. Below the Devil's Hoie where the river narrows Graham had another hard battle. For a time he was completely hidden from view and the hundreds of spectators on the bridge and along the banks were greatly excited. Graham soon appeared in the smoother water where the river widens. He declined to enter a boat and swam to the shore just below the new trolley

> SYMPATHIZE WITH STRIKERS. Soldiers Persaude Miners at Work to Join in the Strike.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Sept. 1.—An unexpected situation has resulted from the ordering out of the national guard to preserve order in the coal fields. The soldiers, whose sympathy was all with the strikers from the start, have used their influence with the men who are at work and have persuaded so many of them to join in the strike that the detachment stationed at Rush Run had to be recalled and sent to another point to keep it from emptying the mine.

Hundreds of families were sleeping Sunday night under the skies for cover and with only the shelter of the skies for protection. It is estimated that over a thousand families have been evicted in the New River valley and most of them had no place to go.

Putting this and that together, it was the Griswold of his earlier New York days-the days of the slender patrimony — who presented himself ough. The clerk was graciously affable.

The clerk knew his man and indulged him, even going so far as to write Griswold's name and intended address on a card for him. Where upon, instead of waiting for Griswold's emergence from the cafe, as' he premised to, the cabman disappeared.

Griswold had a quarter of an hour of purely philistine contentment while he was waiting for his supper. At last the difficulties were all in the past. He would resume his name and his plans; and these last took on all the roseate hues of their birthday.

He would go to Wahaska, settle down to his work, study the people, be helpful and generous and brotherloving, using the money he had won for the betterment of his kind. And in time he would meet Miss Farnham on her own ground, and she would see the demonstration of his theory -see and be convinced. But just here he remembered that he could never know; and from this he passed to many curious questions touching his own feelings for this young woman who had been thrown in his way.

He had been calling her a faultless author's model; was she only thatto him? Assuredly she was much more, and when he had gotten that far, it was only a step to the admission that he was frankly in love with her. The admission opened up a prospect for which there was no word save grievous. For since he could never stoop to win her under false pretenses, she might never be won. He knew well enough that all the cast him out. Perhaps it was this thought, as much as the threat of coming illness, that made him lose his appetite as soon as his supper appeared. But lose it he did, and nothing the waiter could bring sufficed to tempt him. He forced himself to eat a little in sheer desperation, and afterward went to the great rotunda to smoke a cigar. To his great disgust, the tobacco brought on a return of the vertigo which had assailed him on the levee; whereupon he paid his score and took a cab for the train, meaning to go to bed and try the

CHAPTER XIV.

In the day of its beginnings, Wahaska was a trading post on the Indian frontier. Later it became the market town of a wheat growing region, and it was of the wheat growing era that, Jasper Grierson was a product. He was a young man when he went overland to Colorado in the wake of the Pike's Peak excitement, and his townsmen saw him no more till he returned in the vigorous prime of age, wealthy, and the father of a daughter who presently began to reconstruct the social fabric of Wahaska upon a model of her own devising.

In this charitable undertaking Jasper Grierson abetted his daughter as the magnate of a small town may. He built a mansion at the lake-edge and called it Mereside; and when it was done gave a house-warming to which the biddings were in a certain sense mandatory, since by that time he had a fiduciary finger in nearly every industrial pie in Wahaska.

After the house-warming, Margery Grierson's leadership was tacitly acknowledged, though the women still end. discussed her with more or less frankness in the sewing circles. Crystallized into accusation, there was little to be said against her, save at the counter of the Hotel Marlbor- that she was pretty and rich, and that her leaning toward modernity was sometimes a trifle startling. But the charitable seamstresses made the most of these drawbacks, edging Griswold thought not; not in any them now and then with curious speculations about Margery's mother,

None the less, the big house by the Afternoon teas began to supersede Griswold pumped the man dry, and the sewing circles; not a few of the meal of the day drifted from its never convince her, because she could lower in a great city; but she admitted this without prejudice to a fixed determination to revolve in the larger orbit when the time should come. She was content to wait, but she aimed high. Unquestioned social recognition, won or compelled; that and nothing else would atone for the obtrusively unlovely past tholed in privation and squalor in the Colorado mining camps. Miss Grierson was barely 22, but she had lived much.

But there were obstacles to be surmounted even in Wahaska. From the first there was a perverse minority which refused to bow the head in the house of Rimmon. The Farnhams good deeds he could ever do with following of a few of the families the stolen money would not atone; called old, as age is reckoned in the conscience would condemn him and newer west. They were loath to admit the omnipotence of Jasper Grierson's wealth, and at the housewarming they had been represented by variously worded regrets. Miss Margery laughed defiantly and set her white cordingly, the paternal check book teeth on a dauntless resolution to reduce this inner citadel of conservatism. Accordingly she opened the the doctor's office in Main street. Bits. campaign the next morning at the breakfast table.

"Poppa, who is the treasurer of St. John's?" she asked. The magnate did not know, and

"No, thank you, I'll not come down," she said. "Duke doesn't stand well. Can I see Mr. Edward Raymer a moment?"

Raymer bowed and blushed a little. hie knew her so well, by eye intimacy, at least, that he thought she must know him. But he was a fair man, fair to redness, as his hair and beard attested, and he blushed easily.

"That is my name. What can I do for you, Miss Grierson?" "Oh, thank you," she rejoined, impulsively. "I was afraid I might have to introduce myself. I-"

The interruption was of Raymer's making. One of his employes appeared opportunely, and he sent the man to the horse's head with a gesture and once more held up his hands to the perched one.

She let him lift her to the sidewalk, and the ease with which he did it gave her a pleasant little thrill, of the sort that comes with the realization of a thing hoped for. Next to social triumphs, strength, strength in a man, was a thing to be admired. Raymer held the office door open for her and placed a chair at the desk

Thus the small matter of business was concluded, and Miss Grierson

I'm sorry you couldn't come to us last evening to help us christen Mereside. Please tell your mother and some time. I should so dearly love to know them. Thank you, so much. Good-by."

Raymer went out with her, put her on the box and watched her drive away. His smile was meant to be satirical, but it became openly ap-

"The 'regrets' did that," she said; and Gertrude nodded.

Having thus mined the Raymer outworks, Miss Grierson next turned her batteries upon the Farnhams. They were Methodists, and she soon learned that the doctor's hobby was a struggling mission in Norsk Hollow. Acwas again called into requisition, and the stylish trap made an excursion to

"Good morning, doctor," she chirped, bursting in upon the elderly hobbyist as a charming embodiment of youthful enthusiasm. "I'm running errands for poppa this morning. But for some reason the doctor's vicarious promise was not kept, and the Farnhams held aloof, notwithstanding Margery's praiseworthy activity in St. John's; and the Oswalds relinquished the public library project when it became noised about that Jasper Grierson and his daughter were moving in it. Margery possessed her soul in patience, and was placably persistent; but when the winter wore away and spring came and found the conservative opposition increasing rather than diminishing, she grew vindictive, as who would not.

"They think I'm a jay!" she said to herself one day, when the Raymers, mother and daughter, had apparently taken pains to avoid her at the counters in Thornwalden's. "They need a lesson, and they're in a fair way to get it. I'm not going to sing small all the time!"

The next afternoon she met Raymer as he was coming out of the First national bank. They were fairly good friends by this time, and the young man stopped willingly enough to exchange commonplaces with the president's daughter. In the midst of them she astonished

"DON'T GET RICH, PAPA."

A haby in a palace Went pattering here and there,
And the nurse was paid to heed her
And to keep her in her eare,
But she was not pald—'t were folly—

To love the buby, too, So the baby in the palace Missed—what she hardly knew. A baby in a cottage, A tiny blossom, grew. The warmth of mother-klsses,

A father's love, she knew.
The sunshine of affection
Was o'er her in her play:
So the baby in the cottage Was happy all the day.

For the baby in the cottage Wealth set a snare one day. Saying softly: "Here's a palace, In it you may live and play." But the baby missed the kisses And the old-time, loving way; So she gravely urged her father:

Oh, babies in the palaces, With all, save love, to bless; babies in the cottages, Who smile to love's caress, I wonder, oh, I wonder, I wonder, on, I wonder,
If you could speak to-day,
Would you not teach us higher lore,
And, "Don't get rich," would say?
—Alfred J. Waterhouse, in Success.

"P'ease don't oo get rich, I say."

A BENEFIT TO FARMERS.

Consolidation of Harvester Plants Means the Continuation of Low Prices to Buyers.

The benefits that will undoubtedly result to farmers from the recent incorporation of the International Harvester Company, which took over the business of the five leading harvester manufacturers have probably not been considered by a large portion of the farming community.

The economical necessity of a consolidation of the interests of manufacturers and those of their farmer customers must be apparent to any one who understands the present situation.

The increased and increasing cost of material, manufacturing and selling-the latter in consequence of extreme and bitter competition between manufacturers and their several selling agents-has made the business unprefitable.

The two alternatives left for the manufacturers were either the increasing of the prices of machines or the reduction of the cost of manufacture and sales. The latter could only be accomplished by concentrating the business in one company.

As can readily be seen, the forming of the new company was not a stock jobbing operation, but a centering of hearers. mutual interests. There is no watered stock; the capitalization is conserva-

PROPHECY OF GLADSTONE.

One That the Grand Old Man Made Many Years Ago Which Has Come True.

Prophecies, even when the prophets are politicians, sometimes come true, says the St. James Gazette. Here is a notable Gladstone utterance which we can now look back upon as quite prophetic. Speaking or writing 25 years ago of the "menace which, in the prospective development of her resources, America offers to the commercial pre-eminence of England," the grand old man predicted that America, and America alone, "can, and probably will, wrest from us that commercial primaey. We have no title, I have no inclination, to niurmur at the prospect. If she aequires it, she will make the acquisition by the right of the strongest; but, in this instance, the strongest means the best. She will probably become what we are now, the head servant in the great household of the world, the employer of all employed; because her service will be the most and ablest. We have no more title against her than Venice. Genoa or Holland has had against us."

HE REMOVED THE BODY.

The Stage Villain Does a Little Bit of Original Work at a Critical Moment,

Many scenes "not down on the bills" are enacted on the stage of the theater and some of them are ludicrous in the extreme. some of them are ludicrous in the extreme. One night in a sensational drama Mr. Sparling, an Euglish actor of considerable note, had to be shot at the end of the first act and to die with much promptness "down stage." He was on a platform about twice the size of an ordinary billiard table, and, being a youth of many inches, died so far forward that the curtain could not be lowered withthat the curtain could not be lowered without leaving his legs exposed to view. "Pull your legs in!" hissed the hideously inartistic stage manager from the wings. But the dead man was far too conscientious and realistic to play so vile a trick upon Dramatic Art—with both its capitals—and so laid placid and stiff. (As Mr. Sparfing afterward explained to the stage manager: "Dead men don't pull in their legs.")

The curtain might have been up now had it not been for the presence of mind of the "heavy man," who had previously done the deed, for he walked across the stage in a couple of strides—in spite of having already
